Mérida, Extremadura's capital and located in the west of Spain, was founded by the Romans in the 1st century BC. Remains of the ancient city are still preserved, such as the Roman theatre, which is still in operation and has two rows of columns on the stage. Its 792m Roman bridge spans the Guadiana River until it reaches the Alcazaba, the 9th century Islamic fortress built on top of the Roman walls.

JOB DESCRIPTION

The Ancient Comedy: identifying elements and main examples.

The chorus on the Ancient Comedy

Rehearsals that will be integrated in the Chorus of the Comedy "Los Acarnienses" of Aristophanes

Theatrical performances with an audience: "Los Acarnienses" by Aristophanes, version and direction by Raquel Bazo

Produced by Augusto en Mérida, the International of Classical Theater Festival of Mérida.
